

Absolutism in France

Central Historical Question:

If people in a country will only obey a king they respect, then does the king have the right to act in any manner that gains him respect?

Notes:

| | |
|---|---|
| 1. In relation to the CHQ, what ideas are most important in the notes? | 2. Does the king have the right to act in any manner to gain him respect? No ←-----→Yes 3. Why? |
|---|---|

Document #1 Cardinal Richelieu, Political Testament (1624)

| | |
|--|---|
| 1. In relation to the CHQ, what is important about this document? | 2. Does the king have the right to act in any manner to gain him respect? No ←-----→Yes 3. Why? |
|--|---|

Document #2 Jean Domat On Social Order and Absolute Monarchy 1697.

| | |
|--|---|
| 1. In relation to the CHQ, what is important about this document? | 2. Does the king have the right to act in any manner to gain him respect? No ←-----→Yes 3. Why? |
|--|---|

Document #3 Duc de Saint-Simon: describing of the Court of Louis XIV 1697

| | |
|--|---|
| 1. In relation to the CHQ, what is important about this document? | 2. Does the king have the right to act in any manner to gain him respect? No ←-----→Yes 3. Why? |
|--|---|

If people in a country will only obey a king they respect, then does the king have the right to act in any manner that gains him respect?

No ←-----→Yes

Why?